FOOD

Trends

I am just back from a great trip to South America, it was my first time visiting this part of the world and I got to taste some interesting and unique local ingredients and soak up some amazing culture. Lima was a particular favourite with lots of delicious fruits and seafood. I'm looking forward to taking some inspiration from this trip and translating it into some new and unique products for our own brand ranges. Inspired by this trip this month's trend update is looking at some new ingredients (chaga mushrooms anyone??), packaging innovation and Sweden's latest fitness trend. Have a great month!

TRENDS EXPERT

A flat white and a mushroom coffee please!

We all know that coffee trends are big news, we have had chai lattes, turmeric lattes and now mushroom coffees are popping up in cafes and supermarkets. At the end of 2017 I had my trends crystal ball out and a trending ingredient that I called out for 2018 was the chaga mushroom, fast forward a few months and this trend has come to life. Mushrooms like chaga have anti-inflammatory properties and its these types of mushrooms that are being used in mushroom coffees rather than the more familiar mushrooms that are used for cooking. Look out for mushroom coffee coming to a coffee shop near you soon!

Fancy changing up your fitness regime and helping the environment?

If you haven't heard of "Plogging" you will soon. It's the latest fitness craze in Sweden, it combines jogging with you guessed it, picking up litter. You'll burn calories and do your bit for the environment!

Vanishing packaging...it's a thing!

Skipping Rock labs is a start up in London that has developed "Ooho" a sphere made from seaweed that is filled with water. The sphere is completely edible. The company's goal is to make packaging disappear, such a cool product. It's currently on sale in Selfridges in London.

Who knew there could be so much controversy about Camembert!

Camembert is synonymous with France but controversially, at the World Championship cheese contest held in the US, a Canadian Camembert made in Montreal was voted the world's best, beating out French Camembert's to claim the title. There are now calls for Camembert to get protective status, similar to champagne.

Coke is adding to its range in the US market

Two new Coke products are hitting the shelves in the US. Coca-Cola Georgia Peach and Coca-Cola Californian Raspberry are available in retail and foodservice. This is the first flavour addition to the Coke range since Vanilla coke came out in 2002 (am I the only one feeling old!?)

Top Tips for your barbecue

- Use proper charcoal, food grade only of course, lumpwood charcoal is best
- You don't have to be a carnivore to use a BBQ. Aubergines and courgettes brushed with extra virgin olive oil and rubbed with rock salt and garlic is great and easy to BBQ
- Fish is beautiful on a BBQ, prawn skewers or a sea bass filled with fennel sticks or lemon grass sticks will work a treat
- Avoid flames - grey and glowing is when the charcoal is ready.
