FOOD

Trends

It's been a busy month here at trend HQ, we had an inspiring trip to our Foodservice Academy Alumni Ballykilkavan Brewing, it was so interesting to see how their amazing craft beers are made. We also had a meeting with our Panel of Chefs which is always informative and it's great to catch up with their news from the foodservice front lines! In this month's update I'll be looking at what festival goers are looking for from their food and KFC's new vegan launch.

Have a great month!

TRENDS EXPERT

Festival fever

Festivals are becoming more and more popular in Ireland. There have been lots of festivals on this Summer, (hopefully you have managed to eat some interesting food and see some iconic bands!). If your business caters at music festivals then I've got some great facts and figures that might help with your menu planning for the next big festival season. Musgrave MarketPlace has commissioned a piece of research to find out what Irish festival goers are looking for. Here are some of the big call outs:

- 81% would like to see healthier food options at festivals
- 61% don't budget how much they are willing to spend on food and drink in advance
- 60% of people have tried a dish or food for the first time at a festival
- 56% of Irish festival goers would like to see more vegan food at music festivals
- 49% are more likely to purchase food and drink from vendors who don't use single use plastic

It's interesting to see that so many people are willing to try something new and interesting at a festival, and are willing to pay a little bit extra for new experiences. So be bold with your menu choices for festival goers, offer them something a little bit healthier, and keep sustainability in mind when planning your packaging options.

KFC's Imposter Burger sells out fast

The vegan trend continues to gain momentum, with KFC launching their Imposter Burger in the UK, made of Quorn, the burger was hugely popular and sold out in only 4 days. I haven't tasted this myself but lots of online reviews are saying that it tastes very like regular KFC chicken. Interestingly with advances in meat substitutes meaning that "fake meat" looks and tastes more and more like the real thing there are some concerns among vegans that they are getting meat free products. If you are serving vegan and non-vegan options of products like burgers, be sure your staff are fully trained to avoid any confusion and help reassure your vegan customers.

BLANCO NIÑO

Blanco Niño is an exciting, innovative Mexican food brand and one of Europe's first authentic Tortillerias. The team are on a mission to redefine the premium Mexican category in restaurant kitchens, producing tortillas the traditional Mexican way - using whole corn and grinding it with a volcanic stone into masa (known as nixtamalisation).

Tacos aren't just delicious, they're also low in salt, low in fat, certified gluten free and suitable for vegans!

FOOD TO GO DISPOSABLES

The impact of Disposables & Food Packaging on the environment has become a hot topic over the last number of months. There is an increasing demand for disposable tableware and food packaging products that are made from renewable, compostable raw materials and this is only set to continue into the future.
